Vol. XXIX No. 5

January 2020

NEXT MEETING: Thursday, February 6, 6:30PM
Speaker: Ruth Lozner, "How to Talk about Your Art"

Message from the President, Patrick Sieg

Dear Rockville Art League artists,

A very happy holiday season to you all.
It's the most wonderful time of the year (and not only because our beautiful members' art show is up and running at the Glenview Mansion).

The Rockville Art League Juried Members' Winter Show opened to a capacity crowd on December 8, 2019 and will be up through January 24, 2020.

Lisa Sieg did a terrific job organizing the show and, along with dedicated volunteers and our judge Kris Loya, has staged an exceptional exhibit.

We had a sponsor, Northwest Federal Credit Union whose generous donation funded the prizes for our first, second and third prize winners as well as the Best in Show. A special thank you to Christian Mendez, Branch Manager of the NWFCU's Rockville location...he attended both the opening and the walk-through with our judge.

Speaking of judging the show, Kris Loya did an excellent job jurying our show, working overtime as we had a record number of entries (all excellent) and she had to sort through them all multiple times to arrive at the number that would fit into our gallery space. She saw image titles, medium and dimensions only for the initial sort and then in person selected the award winners. Many of you met her during the walk-through and saw first-hand how thoughtful and engaging Kris is.

There are pictures of the opening and the walk-through on the RAL Facebook page and more information in the newsletter.

I am gratified to see how many RAL members are included in year-end shows throughout the region. We seem to have momentum right now and many positives in our favor this year.

- We were able to return to the Glenview Mansion for our meetings and member shows. RAL has a very positive working relationship with the City of Rockville and I look forward to expanding our partnership.
- Our membership numbers are at record levels.
- The juried shows and boardroom exhibits have been beautiful...consistently high-level work and record number of entries.
- Our financial resources are stable and secure (thank you, Treasurer Rob Gale, for keeping us informed and on the right track).

- And we are positioned to have great success in 2020. I am excited to see what the new year has in store for the Rockville Art League.

Our first meeting in 2020 will be on Thursday, February 6, 2020, with artist and professor Ruth Lozner giving a presentation. She has held faculty positions at the University of Maryland, College Park, Parsons School of Design, New York, and the University of the Arts, Philadelphia. She currently holds the titles of Professor Emerita from the University of Maryland and Fellow of the Royal Society of the Arts, Great Britain.

Some of you may remember her show this summer of her beautiful collaborative paintings (with Kenzie Raulin), assemblage sculptures and collages. Her work is beautiful, whimsical and insightful. Her talk will focus on how we as artists can better communicate about our work and the creative process. I am personally in sore need of help on that topic and I know all will enjoy and benefit from Ruth's talk.

Lastly, please take a moment to thank the Board Members of our Rockville Art League. They are all so generous with their time and support of our league. We all lead busy lives and our board has carved out time to devote to RAL and their effort and ideas help us stand out as an inclusive and supportive art organization. I know they will appreciate hearing from you.

Thank you all for being creative people and for being a part of RAL.
I look forward to seeing you in the new year.

Sincerely,
Patrick Sieg

The first row has one that is a bold font in a standard blue and one was the same word except the color was less opaque, so it appears lighter. At the end of the row is a larger, vertical version of the word. In the second row, the first was italicized and the second was a lighter weight (thinner characters). In the third row, the first has a heavier bolding applied, and the next has the letters squished together. In the fourth row, the characters are deformed and the second uses just an outline of each character.

Now let's look at some variations of color. As you can see below, it's still the same font as above with the same size characters. The left one has a uniform color throughout the word. The second has a dark blue border (the same color used above), but each character has a different interior color.

Look at how much variety is there, and that's all with just using the same font in one size!

Text Text

The text samples above are all the same font, one that's simple. This kind of boxy letter format is called "sans serif" because there are no embellishments attached to each character. Other type faces have lots of curlicues, and those are called serif fonts. There's an endless variety, but here's a few.

Critique by Penny Kritt

The Power of Typograpy

As our interface with the world becomes more digital, text has also become more artistic. Just like emojis are a great way for a single "character" to show a huge range of emotions, the style of characters in text is equally expressive.

Here's a sample of a single word created in the same color and the same font. Look at how much can be done.

Not only are the letters quite different, but so are the number forms.

SERIF 197
SERIF 197

A third generic form of lettering is called script. Closer to handwriting with the letters connected, there are also many forms from which to choose. The first sample below is a traditional form, the kind that might be used in a wedding invitation. The next two are more informal, more like writing on a grocery list.

Script 137

Script 137

Script 137

Note that the artistry behind them makes them very descriptive but not always easy to read. Things often get tricky with certain characters, especially numbers. In the serif fonts, everything is easy to read. With the script fonts, the numbers 1 and 7 are often mistaken for each other. The number 3 could be misread as 8 or the letter B.

As an artist, there are certain tools and techniques you can always count on to have a particular effect on the viewer. Along with anything that is bright red, letters and numbers will always cause a viewer's eye to go there first and stay the longest. They rightly assume that the artist used them because they convey important information. That makes these a great way to build part of a center of interest.

Here's an iconic sign that chocolate lovers around the world recognize. Before you look at the image below, take a moment to pay attention to how your eye moves through the image.

If you thought that stopped you dead in your tracks, now look at this version of the sign from behind.

Slowed you down even more, didn't it!

Below is an image without any text.

Here's the same image with text added.

Dance with Me
Digital design
By Penny Krittr

Look at how different the feel of the piece is. Note that the top of each letter was slightly off the image, and the E at the end of the word is mostly obscured by one shoe. Do you get a sense of sloppiness because the word could have been done with all letters properly visible? Or does it give a sense of energy and movement that matches the battered shoes that have delighted audiences around the world?

Take some time to doodle a word or a few numbers. Why did you choose them? Did they crawl across the composition at random or were they connected into a recognizable form? Were they vertical or horizontal, upside down or backwards? Did you fill in the holes in the 8 and 9 and in the b, o and d? See what you can make of them. Then just let your imagination wander. Will it become a whole composition? Maybe it will be the center of interest in a new piece? Or maybe these character shapes will be a barely noticeable way to break up a large but boring background shape.

If you get something you really like, send me a jpg so we can all admire it!

If you'd like a gentle critique of your work, email me a photo at pennykrittr@aol.com.

MEMBER NEWS

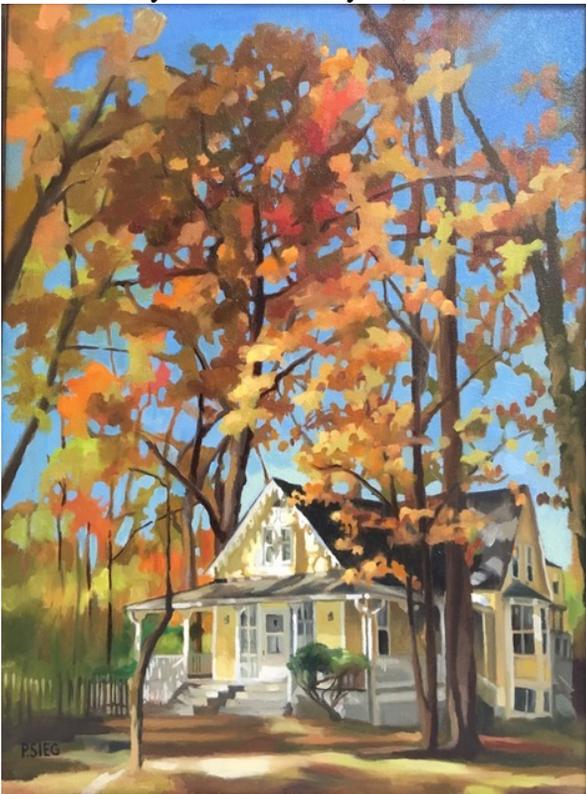

Nighat Ahmed's Oil and Watercolor paintings and prints are on display at the Mayor's Office, City of Rockville from December 3, 2019 until March 1, 2020.

Howard Clark has one photograph in each of two exhibits presented by the Maryland Photography Alliance. The first exhibit, at the Bohrer Park Center in Gaithersburg, is a collection of the winning photographs from MPA's "2019 Photo Contest." This exhibit continues until January 21. The second is a traveling exhibit of "Fine Art Imagery" hosted by Maryland Hall for the Creative Arts in Annapolis. It continues until February 19 with a reception from 5:30 - 7:00 on January 16. Also, his photograph "Beaver Dam on the Snake River" is included in Frederick Camera Clique's Annual Members Show at the Delaplaine in Frederick. That exhibit ends on December 29.

Patrick Sieg's painting Tall Trees, Morning Light is going into an exhibition at the Mansion at Strathmore titled "Home." The exhibit runs from January 11 to February 23, 2020.

Some of Lilian Blom's "Four Seasons" pieces are being featured as murals, at Westfield Montgomery Mall through January 2020. This is part of Visarts' Art Walk. Read about it:

Helen Wood's pastel painting, "Africa River Sunset," was juried into the 25th Friends of the Yellow Barn Members Show.

Patrick Sieg's painting was also juried in the 25th Friends of the Yellow Barn Members Show.

“A Street in Fes, Morocco” by Chris Luckman has been included in an exhibit entitled “Building Bridges: Connecting our Global Roots” at the Activity Center at Bohrer Park in Gaithersburg from January 24 through March 31, 2020.

Barbara Bell is honored to have been juried into The Baltimore Watercolor Society as a Signature Member on October 5, 2019, which just coincidentally was her birthday, so a lovely gift. She is looking forward to participating in their future workshops and exhibitions.

Having successfully completed a two person exhibit with Loren Scherbak of watercolors and ceramics called “Earth Works” at Artists & Makers Studios in Rockville in November 2019, Barbara is preparing a solo exhibition of her watercolors to kick off 2020. WARM IT UP will go up January 2, 2020, at the Winer Family Gallery at Shaare Tefila Congregation, 16620 Georgia Avenue, Olney, MD 20832. The show runs from Jan 2-March 2 and is open during regular business hours. Warm it Up is an exhibition of watercolors that brings the vibrant colors and light of the natural world to the winter months. Her watercolors capture elements of the natural world often overlooked by the casual observer, sometimes in remote places but more often in our own backyards. In this exhibit they take us to warmer climes and brighter seasons, inviting the viewer to explore the rhythms and cycles of nature as it moves toward regeneration and renewal.

Sabiha Iqbal and Jasmin Smith will be part of a group show at the Embassy of Chile. Chile will host the 25th United Nations Climate Change Conference (COP-25). To commemorate this event, the Embassy of Chile to the United States has invited students from the Corcoran Continuing Education program to exhibit works inspired by our planet's climate and the effects of our collective human impact. Featuring both fears and hopes for our future, community artists attending the Advanced Abstract Painting classes have created works that highlight Earth's unique beauty.

Building Community on Climate Change will be exhibited at the Embassy of Chile from November 22nd through January 23rd. This exhibition is free and open to the public during business hours.
