Vol. XXXI No. 7

March 2022

NEXT MEETING: Virtual Meeting: Thursday, March 3—7:00 PM
Ben Carter, “The Ceramic Passport”

Message from the President, Patrick Sieg

Dear Rockville Art League Artists,

I hope you all had a chance to view the Zoom recording of Zdeno Mayercak, our February guest speaker. Thank you to those members who attended our Zoom and for taking the time to comment on his presentation...many were quite inspired by his talk.

We haven't visited with a sculptor before (not in the last five years anyway) and it was about time we did.

Zdeno's art is beautiful and his life journey as an artist was incredibly interesting.

I cannot imagine the courage required to leave home and family, relocate to a foreign place (as a political refugee no less) and then establish yourself as an artist in that new land.

Zdeno has a large and loyal following of art students (a number are members of RAL) and that is a testament to his success.

Our speaker for March is another 3-D artist, ceramicist, author, podcaster and artist Ben Carter and I am much looking forward to his presentation. More on Ben later in this newsletter.

Our speakers are terrific, and another major draw of our league is the opportunity for members to exhibit their work.

Many thanks to the artists who have entered the “Lost, Found and Looking Forward” exhibit; it is going noteworthy.

Showing our pandemic themed creations has certainly struck a chord with our membership, and it is so gratifying to see your work.

As a reminder...only the pieces selected for special recognition by our Rockville judge, Therese Capel will be on display at the Fitzgerald Theater the afternoon of March 13 for the debut of a musical composition commissioned by the city. The rest of this beautiful exhibit will be on display in the Glenview Mansion Art Gallery beginning with art drop off on March 14th.

Speaking of exhibits...our spring juried show call for entry is later in this newsletter. Art historian Dr. Irina Stotland has agreed to be our judge this spring. Many of you may know Dr. Stotland as she has spoken with our league in September for the past five years and we are honored to have her.

On the membership side, we have now reached a level that exceeds the number of any of the past five years. Your participation makes our league strong and is a vote of confidence for our beautiful exhibits, our meeting speakers, and our community. We are 170 artists strong and growing...thank you.

As I write this column the weather outside is quite cold, but the daylight is growing longer each day. Each spring offers the promise of growth and renewal. Spring brings the power and magic of new beginnings, laughter, and light, and we are reminded of how beautiful change can be. It is a great time to be an artist and we are so lucky to have our wonderful community.

“Despite the forecast, live like it is spring.” Lilly Pulitzer, Fashion Designer

Sincerely,
Patrick Sieg
President, The Rockville Art League

2022 Speaker Series:

7pm on Zoom (Zoom invitation will be sent out to members a few days before each speaker).

February 3: Thank you to everyone who joined us on Thursday, Feb. 3, for Prof. Zdeno Mayercak’s fascinating presentation on his five decades as a sculptor. MANY THANKS to Zdeno Mayercak for taking us on such an artful journey of the highlights of his prolific career, sharing such incredible work, and for showing a bit of his “subtractive” process. We found his work expressive and engaging; and were amazed how he could create and project such human emotion from a piece of organic material. We have sent out the zoom recording to members to watch for up to 30 days after the meeting. Several members have reported back how inspired they were by his talk.

March 3, 7PM: Ben Carter on “The Ceramic Passport” on Zoom

Please join us as we welcome renowned ceramicist, podcaster, and author Ben Carter as he discusses the ways his art practice has enabled him to travel and experience culture both as an insider and outsider, living abroad in China, working in Australia, and developing the Tales of a Red Clay Rambler -- a podcast featuring interviews with artists from around the world. He'll also be discussing the History of Ceramics Instagram feed (@historyofceramics) that he started to engage a younger generation with global traditions in ceramics.

Ben Carter is a studio potter, educator, and podcast host based in New Jersey. He received his BFA in ceramics/painting from Appalachian State University and his MFA from the University of Florida. His professional experience includes being an artist-in-residence at the Archie Bray Foundation in Helena, MT, and Anderson Ranch Arts Center in Snowmass, CO, and the Education Director of the Pottery Workshop in Shanghai, China. He has lectured and exhibited widely in the United States, Canada, China, Australia, and New Zealand. He was named Ceramic Artist of the Year by Ceramics Monthly and Pottery Making Illustrated. In addition to his studio work, he is the creator/host of <https://www.talesofaredclayrambler.com> where he interviews artists about their craft, creativity, and lifestyle. He has authored a full-length book, "Mastering the Potter's Wheel," published by Voyageur Press in 2016. Visit the blog to listen to the Tales of a Red Clay Rambler Podcast. Discussion about Clay, culture, and travel at www.talesofaredclayrambler.com

One Artist's Story: Finding Community

When RAL member Janet DeWoskin moved to Rockville from North Carolina last June, she had three art priorities: settling into her new studio, staying in touch with her NC art community, and creating a new art community here.

"When I moved to Rockville, I wanted to connect with my new home's local artists, so I joined the Rockville Art League," Janet said. "When I saw the notice about Critique Seek, I knew it would be a great way to meet fellow artists and to establish the same kind of valuable sharing group I have with my Durham, NC, artists.”

Janet was very involved in a high-level art program in high school. When she returned to art just a few years ago, Janet sought out and joined her Durham group. “Within this group I found encouragement, constructive feedback, inspiration, and ideas for approaching my artwork with different techniques and perspectives,” she said.

“When Covid hit, we decided to continue our monthly meetings virtually, on Zoom. We found we could share with each other effectively in this manner. Two of us now have moved out of the Durham area, but our group still meets monthly on Zoom, and we intend to continue for the long-term.”

Janet sought that same kind of connection in Maryland when she signed up for Critique Seek. She said she looked for artists working with art styles and subjects that piqued her interest, even if those differed from her own. Janet currently creates representational and abstract paintings in acrylics and oils, and is most intrigued with incorporating leaves, rocks, and other items found while hiking. “From my NC artist group, I know that I can learn a lot from artists with different styles from mine.”

“Because of Covid, I also looked for artists who were open to meeting virtually. I reached out to several artists on the list and began an email dialog with those who answered.”

Janet said they initially met outdoors to get to know one another. Since then, scheduling meetings has been challenging because of time conflicts and the desire to include all four members at each meeting.

“We recently agreed to expand our group to six members; that way if one or two people can’t make a meeting, there would still be enough members to have some good critiquing and sharing,” Janet said. “I’m confident that expanding to six will work well for our group going forward.”
